

L&S 160B

Effective Personal Ethics for the 21st Century

Final Examination

Personal Reflection Assignment

Although the assignment is brief (2-page minimum), please take a moment to give it some genuine thought.

Now that the course is complete, please offer whatever inspires you as a result of your experience of the class and all that was discussed.

If you're having trouble getting started, consider one of the possibilities below:

1. How can we, as human beings, discover, develop, depend-upon, and deliver to the world, our greatest ethical integrity?
2. Briefly mention the major points you have been able to take away from your experience in class this term.
3. Describe one way that you feel the class may have helped you in more confidently and successfully encountering ethical dilemmas in your professional and personal life.
4. Based on your experience this term, how useful do you feel it is (or not) to have an undergraduate personal ethics class here at Berkeley? What should be its purpose? Should it be elective or mandatory? How can it better evoke and encourage ethical consideration, decisions, and behavior?

Take it seriously, and enjoy it!
